A BAPTIST ELDER

Restored to Health by Vinol

"I was run down and weak from indigestion and general debility, also suffered from vertigo. I saw a cod liver preparation called Vinol advertised and decided to give it a trial, and after taking two bottles I regained my strength and am now feeling unusually well." Henry Cunningham, Elder Baptist Church, Kingston, N. C.

Vinol is not a patent medicine—but a preparation composed of the medicinal elements of cod's livers, combined with a tonic iron and wine. Vinol creates a hearty appetite, tones up the organs of digestion and makes rich, red blood. In this natural manner, Vinol creates strength for the run-down, over-worked and debilitated, and for delicate children and old people. For chronic coughs, colds and bronchitis Vinol is unexcelled.

All such persons in this vicinity are asked to try Vinol on our offer to refund their money if it fails to give satisfaction.

the close of the season. However, he was willing to trade. He referred Mr. Dietz to Thompson, the horse trainer. Thompson offered to trade the famous twenty-five year old trick mule for Dietz's spirited horse. The latter was about to become the owner of the mule when he thought of something. He was filled with apprehension that the mule would not perform except in the presence of the trainer, and that if he got the endeared animal he would have to perform the tricks himself.

THE TENNESSEE WAY OF HANDLING LAWYERS

One and Perhaps Two Assassinated by Mob of Night Riders.

Union City, Oct. 20.—Word was received from Reel Foot lake that R. Z. Taylor and Capt. Quentin Rankin, lawyers of Trenton, Tenn., while fishing at the lake were assassinated by night riders last night. Rankin's body was found hanging to a tree riddled with bullets. Rankin was counsel in suits instituted against parties at the lake.

STORY OF A SURVIVOR.

Union City, Tenn., Oct. 20.—A dispatch from Reel Foot lake tonight, where a mob of masked men early this morning took Col. R. Z. Taylor, aged sixty, and Captain Quentin Rankin, both of Trenton, and widely known lawyers, out of their hotels at that place and murdered the latter, fails to report the finding of Col. Taylor's body or any trace of his whereabouts.

A man named Powell, who hauls fish from the Lake to Hickman, is said to have been forced to accompany the mob which numbered eighty members. Powell had been staying at the hotel, and when the riders called everyone out and compelled them to line up, Col. Taylor and Captain Rankin and a survivor whose name is unknown are said to have been taken away, the others being permitted to return to bed.

Powell states, it is said, after the killing of Rankin, a vote was taken regarding the disposition to be made of Taylor. During a dispute Taylor made a dash and jumped into a bayou starting to swim across it. A number of shots were fired at him, and in the confusion Powell slipped away and brought back the story of his escape.

Early Fall Suggestions

Toward the end of the season when the green corn becomes too old to serve on the cob or to cut down, it may be used as fritters or even the more delicate corn pudding. Here are two excellent recipes: To every pint of grated corn pulp allow one scant cupful of milk, two tablespoonfuls of flour, one-half a teaspoonful of salt, a dash of red and the same of black pepper.

Another recipe is to mix a pint of green corn with three tablespoonfuls of milk, a teaspoon of flour, a teaspoon of drawn butter, a teaspoonful of salt, half a teaspoonful of pepper, and one egg. When fritters are to be made, fry the batter in hot butter. If corn pudding is preferred, bake the latter in tin pie plates, well buttered, in a hot oven.

In the cool evenings of this last month of summer outing the hearth fire is again welcome, and parties for gathering driftwood are delightful among the fast-shortening days along the shore. Many summer visitors freight home a barrel or two of this precious fuel for the open fire of winter. Pine cones, too, are gathered for this purpose, and a great many may be stored away in the odd nooks and corners of trunks and packing cases. They are so light that a dress suit case, or telescope bag filled with them can easily be carried by hand. A pretty and inexpensive Christmas gift, and one not lacking in sentiment, is a large bag made of turkey red lined with green ribbons and filled with pine cones. An advantage about a gift of this kind is that to the possessor of an open fireplace duplicates will be welcome. A good Christmas gift is a difficult thing to get, and it is never too early to begin thinking about them.

The mosaic, stone and brick floors require the same treatment—washing with warm soap suds whenever they are dirty, rinsing and rubbing dry with a thick clean cloth fastened over a flat soap. This is far and away better than the usual dry mop. They are for the most part loose ends, which are shedding plentifully at every stroke. For any sort of floor cleaning one needs a handy kneepad. It should be large enough to knead on, yet thick enough to save the knees from cold dampness and sore joints. The pad is especially required in cleaning tile work or mosaic. To do such work without it is to invite rheumatism.

It is quite important to keep the kitchen boiler and hot water pipes clean. Once a month at least turn off the water in the special tap in the pipe for this purpose, then open the faucet and let all possible water run out. When it has stopped, set a tub under the boiler and open the tap at the bottom. When all the sediment has run out, turn on the water again, and let the inside of the boiler have a good rinsing. All this must be done when the fire is out and the water cool. Fire without a free circulation in the waterback would burst the pipes.

Rugs and carpets can be darned to manifest advantage. Lay a bit of stout woolen cloth upon the wrong side of a rug, fasten down the frayed edges with casual stitches here and there, then darn thickly back and forth, using the largest size embroidery needles and either wool, silk, or flax of a harmonious color. Darn the threadbare spots in the carpet on the floor with ravellings in a fine corded upholstery's wools. If there are any moth-eaten spots, match the colors as nearly as possible in fine soft wool, cut into short lengths, and sew the yarn to the carpet with fine twist or flax, drawing the stitches so tight that the wool stands up on either side. When the spot is well covered with the luffing, trim it off with very sharp shears.

BEATRICE CAREY.

Smart Between Season Gowns for the Young Girl.

It is still too early to plan cold weather frocks and suits, but for the betwixt and between season it is generally necessary to restore a wardrobe to some extent and one or two new gowns in light weight cloth, and a cloth coat and skirt costume is necessary for wear during the cool days of early fall, if one wishes to look well gowned. For young girls wear the new modes are offering some excellent suggestions, and, as it is often necessary to purchase the wardrobe of the schoolgirl or boarding school miss, a few sketches of some of the most desirable models are here shown.

First in importance in selecting an outfit for the schoolgirl is the tailored suit, which will be constantly worn, and should be of good material and cut and perfectly plain.

Occasionally a smart looking suit of good style and cut can be purchased ready made, but as a rule the made-to-order suit is much more desirable and need not be more expensive, if a moderate priced tailor is found. The new diagonal or Van Dyke colorists or woads, in attractive neutral colorings, will be extensively worn this winter, and the new combination suits, in which the coat is made of plain material and the skirt of striped novelty cloth to match, so planned that the top of the skirt is of solid color, matching the coat, are girlish and effective. For example, one such suit shown was in very dark blue, in plain cheviot, the cloth having rather a rough weave. The skirt was plaited, of course, and was made of material showing a plain wide stripe of the dark blue alternating with a stripe of the same width, which was in combination blue and mahogany brown in a small plaid. This plaid only showed below the hip line, as the upper part was plaited to look like plain blue cloth, the plaid only being visible where the skirt flared below the hips.

For older girls the black and white plaids are particularly smart and when fashioned in the mode just described are chic without being too striking.

As to the colorings of the new fall suits, dark blues, grays, browns and greens are all desirable, but there are various odd tones of these colors that meet especially with fashion's approval at present. One new tone of brown resembles somewhat a deep mahogany shade, and is called cedar, while Damas-fancy revers or other trimming is much better style than those of fanciful design.

Striped fabric, while less chic in tailor models, hold their own among the thinner stuffs and light weight woolsens, and some very attractive frocks or indoor gowns are made of striped materials in two-tone or combination colorings.

A great many gowns designed for the schoolgirl show the liking for the princess or one-piece frock, and although most of the models show the loose bodice with the fulness laid in plaits at the shoulders and the gored or plaited skirt, the panel front is often seen, or else the bodice and skirt are joined by a narrow stitched belt so that the frock is one piece. A frock so made is very neat looking, and can be put on much more quickly than a gown where the bodice and skirt are separate, so that a separate belt has to be adjusted.

The two larger sketches show a couple of simple and practical designs for young girls' frocks. One of the models illustrated shows the semi-princess line, as it is a one-piece front panel, although the skirt and bodice are joined across the sides and back by a narrow strap belt. This frock was of light greenish blue serge and was trimmed with straps of the same and small buttons, also of serge. The yoke was of cream embroidered lattice, as were the undersleeves.

The other gown was of cream white rajah with a black dot, trimmed with plain white rajah, and a little blue black sash, but the design could be used for dotted or striped woolsen material combined with plain material to match.

The little sketch showing the designs for bodices of light weight serge or cloth gowns may prove of use in planning school frocks. The first sketch shows a frock with a panel front, the design with its rounded tabs and buttons being odd and attractive. A little sashette braiding could be used about the upper part of the bodice, and the gumpie is made detachable, so that it can be easily laundered. The second or middle drawing shows a plaited blouse with a square yoke, trimmed with the center of the front with broad loops and buttons. The third blouse was of dark blue French flannel, buttoned on the shoulders and under the arms and embroidered in front in a star and bar in crimson and gold.

DOROTHY DALE.

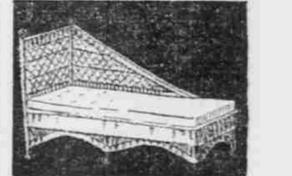

A Palatable Dish.

Pea Timbales—Mix one cup of pea pulp with two beaten eggs, a few drops of onion juice, two tablespoonfuls of thick cream, one tablespoonful of melted butter, two-thirds a teaspoonful of salt, one-eighth a teaspoonful of black pepper, and a few grains of cayenne, turn into buttered molds and bake in a pan of water until firm. Serve with one cup of white sauce, to which has been added one-third a cup of cooked and drained peas. These may be made of fresh, dried or canned peas. In seasoning a teaspoonful of chopped mint leaves adds to the dish if you are fond of the mint flavor. For variety or the sake of color add to the sauce with the peas cubes or figures cut from carrots cooked tender.

A Couch of Odd Design

The little sketch shows an odd and graceful design for a wicker couch, which would look well in a bedroom, living room or an enclosed piazza. Stained green or red it would be very decorative, when cushioned in denim or cretonne, while for a less formal it could be painted and enameled white or stained to suit the furnishings and cushioned in linen taffeta or in gayly patterned French cretonne.

The couch is quite six feet in length.

So that with a few cushions or pillows added, it would prove very comfortable for lounging or for a reading divan.

Ironing a Shirt.

When ironing a shirt fold the latter straight down the middle of the back, and iron the body smooth, taking care to move the iron mainly straight with the warp. Next fold a sleeve flat along the sloped seam, and iron it upon both sides. Iron first through the middle, then take hold of the wrist band or shoulder with the left hand, and hold fast while the iron goes quite to the joint. Open the wristband, lay it flat, and iron hard upon the wrong side, then turn and press upon the right side. Next iron the yoke and neckband.

The ironing of the bosom must be done very carefully. First fasten the neckband properly, then slip the bosom-board inside the shirt, and spread the bosom smooth upon it, pressing it out simultaneously with both hands. With a thin, clean cloth wet the whole linen surface lightly with raw, wet starch. Rub it in thoroughly, and if any place feels sticky, wipe it off with a cloth dipped in tepid water. Have the iron hot enough to yellow dry cloth if allowed to stand 10 seconds. Begin at the bottom of the bosom, and iron straight toward the neck, up the middle, holding the neckband in the left hand and pulling straight against the iron.

Recipes.

Temperance Mint Julep—Bruise the sprigs and leaves of two or three sprays of fresh mint and place in a glass half filled with shaved ice. Macerate thoroughly, add four tablespoonfuls of grape juice and fill the glass with seltzer or carbonated water.

Jelly Roll—Make a layer of sponge-cake, and while it is still hot cut off the edges, spread it with jelly and roll it together. Then roll it in a stiff paper and tie it. If the cake is not overbaked and is rolled while hot it will not crack. The paper will keep it in shape. Cover the top and ends with icing. Decorate it with tracings of icing, candied cherries and angelica.

Fred Tea—Make a quart of tea and add half a cup of lemon juice, sweeten to taste with powdered sugar. Into tall glasses put half a glass of cracked ice and a slice of lemon and add the tea.
